

Careers Education, Information, Advice and Guidance (CEIAG) and Work-Related Learning (WRL) Policy

This policy outlines Trinity Specialist College's commitment to providing high-quality, inclusive careers education, information, advice, and guidance (CEIAG) for all post-19 learners with Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND). Guided by key legislation such as the Equality Act (2010) and the SEND Code of Practice (2015), the policy aims to ensure that all learners receive person-centred, impartial, and aspirational support, helping them transition successfully into employment, further education, training, or independent living.

Statutory Duties

Specialist colleges are required to offer impartial and high-quality career guidance in line with statutory frameworks, including the Education Act 1996, Education and Skills Act 2008, and the Careers Strategy (2017). Career advice must be accessible to all learners, with particular attention to those with disabilities, in compliance with the Equality Act 2010 and SEND Code of Practice (2015). Colleges must also adhere to the Gatsby Benchmarks (2014), ensuring learners receive relevant labour market information, work experience opportunities, and tailored support that meets their individual needs. The Technical and Further Education Act (2017) and the Ofsted Inspection Framework (2019) further highlight the need for career advice that empowers learners to make informed decisions regarding their future education, training, and employment options.

Independent and Impartial Career Advice

Where required, all learners will receive independent and impartial career advice from an advisor at Birmingham Careers Service. Our designated Careers Adviser, Lynsey Hackett, will visit the college regularly throughout the year.
